Welcome to the 2023–24 Summer Reading Guide

“My idea of summer idyll is sitting in the garden watching a line of ants pick their way across bridges of grass, or admiring a tiny native bee as it visits each crown of flowers on the parsley. The smallest details in nature have always fascinated me and The Observologist is full of stuff I love to point out to my nieces and nephews, drawn mostly from my own experiences of observing invertebrates as a kid. Any time I felt stuck for ideas while working on the book, all I had to do was step outside and look around! I hope The Observologist will encourage children to see that an incredible, lively, natural world is more than just big animals in faraway places — it's all around us.”

Yellowface

RRP$35.00 PB Jun 2023 9780008600303

"I wanted to write something that spoke to that cyclical cynicism and the remarkable stability of the [publishing] system to absorb the shockwaves of critique. Yellowface is a fundamentally pessimistic story, because it lays out this horrific scandal and then displays how that scandal in itself becomes another easily packaged consumer product. Who controls the narrative, really? When all the dust has settled, does anything ever really change? How bad would things have to get — to really break down the system?"

“There’s this thing we all do... look into the mirror. That deeply confronting moment when it’s quiet, you look deep inside yourself and see your irretrievable past, tricky present and possible futures. I wanted to write a book that felt like that. It’s the product of sitting on a street corner for three months, watching people, asking them about love and loss. Lola in the Mirror is a love story. It’s also a story of art, crime, mystery and, most of all, life.”

“I shall forever be known first and foremost, by most people, for playing Jean-Luc Picard and delivering catchphrases like ‘Engage’ and ‘Make it So’.”

The breadth of Stewart’s accomplishments as an actor, both in ‘high’ and ‘low’ culture settings — 40 years with the Royal Shakespeare Company as well voice talent stints on American Dad! — show him to be a driven artist whose life on the page is as exuberant and colourful as all the characters he has portrayed. This is his story.

WE RECOMMEND

Andrea Hotere ●

The Vanishing Point

RRP$37.99 PB Oct 2023 9781761152757

"I visited the Prado Museum in Madrid with my parents when I was young. I chose to sit in a room with Las Meninas. Later, back in New Zealand, when I was a mum with young children, I heard an interview — someone talking about a painting. By the end of the interview I knew I had seen the painting before... Las Meninas came back into my life, and I began learning about it and the characters within it. I was intrigued by Picasso's comment that it was a picture painted with curses. I had a feeling that even though so much had already been written about it, there was another story to be told."

Our Land in Colour

RRP$55.00 HB Aug 2023
9781775541929

"Our Land in Colour"

celebrates Aotearoa's rich history. I wanted images that felt Kiwi but also showed New Zealand as we've never seen it. When colourising an image, those small details in a street scene would take me about a week. I would find small dogs in alleyways, or notice a girl missing a toe. I want this book to create conversation about our heritage and how lucky we are to have a vast collection of imagery as we forged our identity."

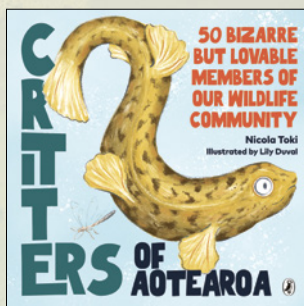

AUTHOR RECOMMENDATION

Liv Sisson

Author of Fungi of Aotearoa: A curious forager's field guide

"I'm super excited about Nicola Toki's new book Critters of Aotearoa. Written with warmth and personality, and accompanied by gorgeous illustrations, Nicola shines a spotlight on some of our most curious (and unsung) creatures. Slimy, creepy and gross... but also kind of cute!"
